

We are a young and fast growing startup from Cologne, Germany. We develop a software platform for the digitalization of energy grids. For our team in Cologne we are looking for a

DevOps Engineer (m/f)

Your tasks

- Development of automation processes for continuous integration and delivery
- Improvement of automated deployment methods and monitoring analytics
- Deployment and operation of the software stack (multi server architecture) in a highly secured cloud environments (e.g. AWS, OTC) and on premise at customers
- Close interaction with the backend development team

Your skills and expertise

- Computer science degree or related technical experience
- Very good knowledge of virtualization of Linux systems and automated deployments
- Experience in automated deployment tools like SaltStack or Ansible
- Interest in high performance and cloud computing clusters
- Fun at work, high motivation, independent and structured way of working

What we are offering

- A very good salary for a challenging and independent work
- The opportunity to work for a tech start-up shaping the energy transition
- Flexible working hours, free drinks and a young team with a high motivation

Are you interested? Please send us your application to jobs@envelio.de